The morning was bright, still, and clear as crystal. The heat waves had not yet begun to rise from the desert.

Nell sat perched high upon the topmost bar of the corral gate. Dick leaned beside her, now with his eyes on her face, now gazing out into the alfalfa field where Belding's thoroughbreds grazed and pranced and romped and whistled. Nell watched the horses. She loved them, never tired of watching them. But her gaze was too consciously averted from the yearning eyes that tried to meet hers to be altogether natural.

A great fenced field of velvety green alfalfa furnished a rich background for the drove of about twenty white horses. Blanco Diablo was the only one in the field that was not free to roam and graze where he listed. A stake and a halter held him to one corner, where he was severely let alone by the other horses. He did not like this isolation. Blanco Diablo was not happy unless he was running, or fighting a rival. Of the two he would rather fight. If anything white could resemble a devil, this horse surely did. He had nothing beautiful about him, yet he drew the gaze and held it. The look of him suggested discontent, anger, revolt, viciousness. When he was not grazing or prancing, he held his long, lean head level, pointing his nose and showing his teeth. Belding's favorite was almost all the world to him, and he swore Diablo could stand more heat and thirst and cactus than any other horse he owned, and could run down and kill any horse in the Southwest.

The cowboys admitted some of Belding's claims for Diablo, but they gave loyal and unshakable allegiance to Blanco Sol. As for Dick, he had to fight himself to keep out of arguments, for he sometimes imagined he was unreasonable about the horse. Though he could not understand himself, he knew he loved Sol as a man loved a friend, a brother. Free of heavy saddle and the clumsy leg shields, Blanco Sol was somehow satisfying to the eyes of the rangers. The dazzling whiteness of the desert sun shone from his coat; he had the fire and spirit of the desert in his noble head, its strength and power in his gigantic frame.

"Belding swears Sol never beat Diablo," Dick was saying.

"He believes it," replied Nell. "Dad is queer about that horse."

"I've often wondered how Belding ever came to give Blanco Sol to me," said Dick.

"I think he wanted to get rid of Sol."

"Maybe. He surely has strange passion for horses. I think I understand better than I used to. I owned a couple of racers once. They were just animals to me, I guess. But Blanco Sol!"

"Do you love him?" asked Nell; and now a warm, blue flash of eyes swept his face.

"Do I? Well, rather."

"I'm glad. Sol has been finer, a better horse since you owned him. He loves you, Dick. Sol always hated Diablo, and never had much use for Dad."

Dick looked up at her.

"It'll be pretty hard to leave Sol when I go away."

Nell sat perfectly still.

"Go away?" she asked, presently, with just the faintest tremor in her voice.

"Yes. Sometimes when I get blue—as I am today—I think I'll go. But, in sober truth, Nell, it's not likely that I'll spend all my life here."

There was no answer to this. Dick put his hand softly over hers; and, despite her half-hearted struggle to free it, he held on.

"Nell!"

Her color fled. He saw her lips part. Then a heavy step on the gravel, a cheerful, complaining voice interrupted him, and made him release Nell and draw back. Belding strode into view round the adobe shed.

"Hey, Dick, that darned Yaqui Indian can't be driven or hired or coaxed to leave Forlorn River. He's well enough to travel. I offered him horse, gun, blanket, grub. But no go."

"That's funny," replied Gale, with

OBITUARY

Mrs. Sallie Ledford, wife of W. M. Ledford, living six miles from Ada, died Saturday at 3:30 a. m. at the home of her son, W. P. Ledford, 503 East 13th street. Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the above home, Rev. J. H. Ball officiating. Interment at Rosedale cemetery.

Deceased was 64 years of age, and was a member of the Methodist church. She is survived by her husband and two sons, John and W. P. Ledford.

The family has resided in and near Ada for many years.

A week ago Mrs. Ledford was brought in for medical attention but all efforts to prolong her life were unavailing.

a smile. "Let him stay—put him to work."

"It doesn't strike me funny. But I'll tell you what I think. That poor, homeless, heartbroken Indian has taken a liking to you, Dick. You saved his life. That sort of thing counts big with any Indian, even with an Apache. With a Yaqui maybe it's of deep significance. I've heard a Yaqui say that with his tribe no debt to friend or foe ever went unpaid. Perhaps that's what ails this fellow."

"Dick, don't laugh," said Nell. "I've noticed the Yaqui. It's pathetic the way his great gloomy eyes follow you."

"You've made a friend," continued Belding. "A Yaqui could be a real friend on this desert. If he gets his strength back he'll be of service to you, don't mistake me. He's welcome here. But you're responsible for him, and you'll have trouble keeping him from massacring all the Greasers in Forlorn River."

The probability of a visit from the raiders, and a dash bolder than usual on the outskirts of a ranch, led Belding to build a new corral. It was not sightly to the eye but it was high and exceedingly strong. The gate was a massive affair, swinging on huge hinges and fastening with heavy chains and padlocks.

At night Belding locked his white horses in this corral. The Papago herdsmen slept in the adobe shed adjoining. Belding did not imagine that any wooden fence, however substantially built, could keep determined raiders from breaking it down. They would have to take time, however, and make considerable noise; and Belding relied on these facts. Belding did not believe a band of night raiders would hold out against a hot rifle fire. Ladd did not share Belding's sanguine hopes.

One January morning Dick Gale was awakened by a shrill, menacing cry. He leaped up bewildered and frightened. He heard Belding's booming voice answering shouts, and rapid steps on flagstones. But these had not awakened him. Heavy breaths, almost sobs, seemed at his very door. In the cold and gray dawn Dick saw something white. Gun in hand, he bounded across the room. Just outside his door stood Blanco Sol.

"Do you love him?" asked Nell; and now a warm, blue flash of eyes swept his face.

"Do I? Well, rather."

NEW ATHLETIC CONFERENCE

Coach M. Z. Thompson of the East Central State Teachers College, together with the coaches of several other colleges in southern Oklahoma and northern Texas, is planning the organization of a new college athletic conference. In this endeavor Mr. Thompson has matched a fight with some of the athletic directors who are trying to center everything around Oklahoma City.

That a new conference is needed is apparent to any one who has kept up with the Oklahoma conference.

In the first place the Oklahoma conference has amounted to little. For several years the Oklahoma University and the Agricultural and Mechanical College were the outstanding schools in the organization, and the others afforded mere practice games for these two big state institutions. When the university withdrew from the conference and entered the Missouri Valley conference, and at the same time the other schools of the state began to take high rank, efforts were made, and are still being made, to make this conference an Oklahoma City affair.

In a recent article in the Daily Oklahoma, Charles Brill, sporting editor, points out why the track meet should be held in Oklahoma City each year. The two main points he makes are that Oklahoma City is centrally located and is large enough to afford many spectators.

In answer to his argument, it might be pointed out that Durant is nearer Dallas than Oklahoma City. Then, we are informed the receipts at Oklahoma City at the track meet a year ago were between $7 and $8 and about the same two years ago. This fact should eliminate Oklahoma City as a place for holding the meet, for there is not a city in the state containing an institution which would afford such insignificant gate receipts.

A conference with the two schools at Shawnee, the teachers colleges at Ada, Durant, Denton and Commerce, the universities at Tulsa, Dallas, and colleges at Sherman and possible two or three other schools, would make a conference that would have ideal railroad connections and a community of interest not present in the Oklahoma Conference.

We are informed that it cost the Southeastern Teachers College $800 to carry their track team to Oklahoma City last spring. Naturally they do not feel like paying this amount again and probably will have no representation this spring. In fact, it was the Southeastern officials who first mentioned the Red River conference. Letters to Thompson from other schools approve the new conference.

There is need for such a new conference, and we hope that Mr. Thompson and others will be able to perfect the organization. A Red River conference would have all the advantages of railroad connection, local interest and a fighting spirit of rivalry that are needed to make any conference successful.

Go to it, Mr. Thompson. The people of Ada are behind you in this meritorious endeavor.

CONGRATULATIONS

The News desires to extend congratulations to the Presbyterians on this the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of the new church building. However, without disparaging the efforts and accomplishments of any member of the church, we feel justified in saying that a large part of the credit for the progress of the enterprise is due to Dr. E. O. Whitwell, the pastor. He is not only a man of broad vision, but is a practical man capable of putting his visions into concrete form. He led the way and has had the hearty co-operation of his flock. Dr. Whitwell's idea of building a church was just to go ahead and build and that is what is being done. Moreover, he thinks it better to govern the progress of building operation by the amount paid in even though it requires more time, rather than put his people under a heavy financial strain at one time. This very practical way of doing things is getting results. Besides that he has labored with his own hands and carefully supervised every detail of the work. With the continued support of his congregation and other friends, he will have the roof over the building before another year rolls around. In giving credit to those whom credit is due the men who have donated work should also be remembered. This has been no small item and these workers have aided in no small degree in making it possible to push the work it its present state.

It is not too late yet to put out a few more trees. The shade trees of Ada have worked a wonderful change in the appearance of the town during the past decade and with such a good example before them the rest of the population should follow suit. Plenty of shade and fruit trees about the premises and a liberal application of the paint brush to the buildings go a long way toward proclaiming the prosperity of a town and of telling the world that the people are full of pep.

If a man could see his own path of duty as well as he sees that which his neighbor ought to tread, he would get up and go some. Paths of duty never intersect at grade crossing but many a fellow who was out of his path has been pretty badly bunged up by getting on others fellow's right-of-way.

Changes in Main Street (Birmingham Age Herald)

Twenty years ago "Main Street" in the average small town of America was a dreary thoroughfare, humble and unpretentious. The stores were for the most part small affairs. Little attention was paid to their appearance, and an attractive shop window was a rarity. The drug stores were ever a center for community gossip but they were plain and unpretentious. In fact, the only bright spots along Main Street were the saloons, some of the proprietors striving for ornamental effects in lights and pictures and soap designs on the bar mirror. There might even be a wheezy musical instrument of some sort that could be played by putting a coin in a slot. At night, "Main Street" was dark, forbidden and deserted. A remarkable transformation has taken place. The principal street in the average small town is now well paved. The stores have a city appearance. Motor cars have supplanted wagons and buggies. The saloons are gone, but they would appear tawdry indeed compared to the movie palaces and the drug emporiums in marble tile, where a little of everything is sold in addition to pills and potions. At night "Main Street" is brilliantly lighted. Motion picture shows, with an occasional attraction at the "opera house," draw out the citizens, who are more prosperous, more up-to-date and more alert than they used to be. They have adopted city ways on a limited scale and flatter themselves that after all the chief difference between their smart little town and the nearest metropolis is in the matter of size. They ride in the same kind of motor cars, see the same photoplays and enjoy most of the conveniences city people do. "Main Street" symbolizes America and its new splendor is proof of the advancement made by the American people.

Dollars and Diplomacy (Los Angeles Times)

The house has passed the administration's diplomatic bill, which tends to further dignify and improve our foreign service. Consular and diplomatic fields are now careers, instead of mere political spoil. This is more in accord with the English system, which has given the empire the finest diplomatic representation any government ever had. No matter in what corner of the earth he may be, the British consul is a personality who commands confidence and respect.

Uncle Sam's representatives are now largely under civil service and are transferred or assigned to stations in which their qualities may best shine. Appointments are no longer made on purely political account and the American consul of today is usually found to be actually and frequently specially qualified for the station he is filling.

Under the new bill, which now goes to the senate, the civil service ideas is further extended and there is also provision for ambassadorial allowances and the maintenance of embassies.

As it is today, an ambassador must have a large private fortune if he is to live on a par with the representatives of other first-class powers.

The United States is the richest country in the world, but has always been niggardly in sustaining its ministers and ambassadors.

It is highly important that our diplomatic and consular service should be maintained from the cream of our citizenship. Our ambassadors ought not to be appointed because of their campaign contributions or the magnitude of their private fortunes.

Efficiency and capacity should have first call in the nation's diplomatic service.

Forum Spotlights

Beware ye' boll weevil and go easy "Mr. Pessimist." There can be no rest for these prosperity grafters since Hardy Dial and H. B. Rosch have declared war against the boll weevil and some of our optimistic, public spirited boosters have almost perfected a machine that will completely exterminate pessimists. My won't this be a wonderful county to live in by next year.

Now comes more trouble. We have the promise of a creamy and now we find that the pipe line to Byrd's Mill is not large enough to supply the demand for water. Wonder how the milk peddlers will be able to stay in business if we don't furnish plenty of water or let them raise the price.

Some few people have gotten a habit of saying Ada is dead but one of our distinguished members says it is only some of the citizens that are dead. Time to get busy Mr. Undertaker, but for goodness sake don't preserve 'em.

One of the members that attended the Forum Meeting Tuesday night has asked the Secretary to make a contract with the Ada Pickle Plant to serve pickles at every meeting hereafter. This would be fine if we had room to accommodate the crowd. Judging from the way the men went after those pickles Tuesday night, their wives have evidently been feeding them taffy.

The guests included Misses Geraldine Lee, Marjorie Jackson, Maureen Harvey, Mozzelle Hunter, Ethel James Byrd, Mary Frances Duncan and Miss Payne, the honoree.

RESUME OF IRSEN TAKEN UP BY FORTNIGHTLY CLUB

The Fortnightly Study Club met with Mrs. A. Linscheid, 230 South Francis, Thursday. The officers, dressed in Colonial costume, received the members at the door. Suggestions of George Washington's birthday featured the decorations the entertainment of the social hour. After a serving of stimulating hot punch and waters the club proceeded with their lesson which was ably led by Mrs. S. Jackson. Messages from the Master Builder were read and discussed. A summing up of Ibsen, the dramatist, the humorist, the psychologist, the teacher, the man, followed. The next meeting will be with Mrs. German, 211 East Seventeenth.

Lessons from the "Master Builders":

"The wrecking of another's health and happiness can only bring misery to the perpetrator."

"When life has no purpose the man is dead spiritually."

"To will is success in life; to lead a passive existence is failure."

"One's ideals must ever be beyond actual reach—the glory lies in striving toward them."

"A great man's powers do not decline with age. The master-builder was not old from the literal standpoint, but age came upon him because his usefulness had departed from him."

"If our mission in this life is to make this a better and more beautiful world for posterity we will never fear or resent the oncoming generation but will welcome the fact that they must attain heights that we have not reached else our lives have been in vain."

"That he, who reaches what he considers the top of the ladder and sits down to enjoy his success, will never go any higher and will not be able to even sit there very long but will soon fall. If not all in a heap, as did Master Builder, at least gradually but surely."

"That selfishness will be revenged in the character of the person selfish. That the old generation should not stand in the way of the new."

"The greatest lesson seems to be that there should be God-reliance and not self-reliance alone."

"Man's primary mission on earth is service—the service of God and mankind. The man who forgets God and uses the emotions, aspirations, and hopes of his fellow man to attain his heart's desire, never reaches the pinnacle of his ambition. Such a man was Solness. Consumed by a greed for fame, as a builder he crushed the individualities of his friends and loved ones, forcing them to serve as stepping stones to the realization of his dream. He defied love, friendship, youth, efficiency and even God. Himself, in his mad gamble for personal aggrandizement and of course—lost. Solness sacrificed not a life, but a soul, for the thrill of attainment."

"That according to the law of compensation, those who enjoy exceptional advantages in life, shall pay for them by not less exceptional, but perhaps less obvious disadvantages. Ibsen calls it Retribution."

"If you are blessed with ideals through inheritance and teachings and associations, do not lower them for the applause of the hour."

HIGH SCHOOL OPERETTA TO BE PRESENTED HERE

With the completion of the cast for the presentation of the high school operetta, "The Treasure Hunters," Miss Inez Donaldson, director, has been making rapid strides toward preparing for the presentation here March 8 at the McSwain theater.

The best of high school talent will be used by Miss Donaldson, including vocal and stage talent, in the presentation of the operetta.

The setting of the operetta is taken on a tropical island in the Philippine group and hinges around the story of an American, Tom Blake, who has been defrauded of his patent diving suit by J. Winner Luce, an American financier.

An interesting plot of intrigue and love is bound up in the presentation of the operetta.

The cast includes the following: Jackie Wright, Elmo Russell, Clyde Morrison, Laran Molloy, Paul Raymond, J. M. McKeel, Joy Pegg and Frank Morris; Misses Moselle Hunter, Jessie Belle Ellis, Jeannette Lee, Pauline Rollow, Grace Mooney and Jaunita Littlejohn.

SHAW DEPARTMENT STORE FORCE ENTERTAIN FRIDAY

Free Boll Weevil Picture To Show Methods Of Fight

The opening barrage in the war against the boll weevil will be fired here March 5, when Mr. Jeffords, extension agent from the industrial division of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, will offer a free movie on the methods of control of the boll weevil.

A recent correspondence with Ralph Waner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, asks that arrangement be made here to bring the all the farmers and business men interested in the eradication of the destructive pest out to see the demonstration.

Other protective steps will be taken in Pontotoc county to battle the boll weevil menace and assure the county of a profitable cotton yield.

High School Library Grows

The library has kept pace with the improvement so noticeable in all the other departments of the institution. Since the school term opened in September the Ada Board of Education has purchased many needed books and magazines for this part of the school. Among the latter are, The Literary Digest, Current Opinion, The American Magazine, the Scientific American, The Saturday Evening Post, and The Dearborn Independent.

A highly prized book on forestry containing valuable material for special theme work has been presented by Superintendent Hickman.

The library is also indebted to Judge and Mrs. C. A. Galbraith for a generous gift of forty-two very useful volumes, ten of which deal with history ten are reference books, fifteen on "Modern Eloquence," and six on miscellaneous subjects, and a "C

Heavy Decline in Shipbuilding Now Shown Over World

LONDON.—Accounting to Lloyd's Annual Summary of Mercantile Shipbuilding, 852 vessels of 2,467,984 tons were built during 1922 in the shipbuilding yards of the world, which compares with 1,377 of 4,341,679 tons in 1921 and 2,483 of 7,144,549 tons in 1919.

The output credited to the United States for 1922 is 119,138 tons of 887,275 tons less than during 1921, and nearly four millions tons less than the record year of 1919. British yards built 1,031,081 tons in 1922 as compared with 1,528,052 tons in 1921; Germany's output in 1922 was 575,264 tons against 509,064 in the previous year. Other notable declines in 1922 as compared with 1921 are: Japan 144,066 tons; Holland, 69,270; Italy, 63,571; Denmark, 36,222 and France 26,154 tons.

The number of steam and motor tankers launched in the world's yards during 1922 and 61 of 355,854 tons, and of these Great Britain is credited with 42 of 262,826 tons, and the United States two of 14,440.

Laying Out a City Garden

PLANTING PLAN FOR A VEGETABLE GARDEN 10x20 FEET.

A surprising amount and variety of vegetables can be grown in a city backyard garden provided it be well planned. The plan illustrated for a space of 10x20 feet is just a suggestion, to be built upon in making your own layout, if this is the space you have. If more space is available a much greater variety can be grown. Let us consider the possibilities of a space 30 by 50 feet quite a common size.

For instance, planted the 50-foot way of the garden, put in the first row to early peas. A pint will plant the 50-foot row in a double row six inches apart, or, as some deem a better system, the peas spaced two or three inches apart in a wide row six inches across the bottom. The second row, two feet from the first, could be put in to second early peas, and a third row, two feet farther on, into a third pea planting. One pint for each row is sufficient. For this third row it might be well to allow two and a half or three feet of space and plant some of the finer quality, heavier-vining peas.

The fourth row might be devoted to three plantings of radishes from a week to ten days apart, a third to each planting, the spaces to be filled in with a dozen peppers, six eggplants and say, half a dozen cabbage plants, after the radishes have been used. The fifth row, three feet from the pepper-egg plant row, would accommodate 30 tomato plants. Before the tomatoes are put in it could be planted to the earliest crop of spinach.

The next two rows, two feet apart, could be planted one row to string beans and the other to bush lima beans. The next row would accommodate 25 cabbage plants, or half cabbage and half cauliflower, of the early types. Then allowing two and a half feet between the rows, a later broad-casting of spinach would be available, to be followed with later tomatoes or string beans.

Two feet farther along a row of onions from seed, for 25 feet, half the length of the garden, would go in. An ounce of seed would be necessary. The same extent of carrots and beets could be placed in the next two rows, one foot apart, with a row of onion sets. For the outside beds, two to accommodate a first and second planting of lettuce, each 8 feet by 3 1-2 feet, and a bed of equal size for parsley, would be available.

The arrangement leaves a rectangle of about 25 by 9, which may be divided in three beds, the first for early sweet corn, accommodating nine hills 2 1-2 feet each way, a second to eight poles of Kentucky Wonder beans in a space 6 by 9, and the final corner, 10 by 9, for nine poles of lima beans.

Senator Looney Points out Difficult Problems Before Oklahoma State Legislature

If anyone has been under the impression that the present legislature has loafed on the job, he has another think coming, according to Senator J. C. Looney, who spent the week end among his Ada constituents. While the men who make the speeches receive the most publicity, the real work is done in committee meetings where most of the legislation is threshed out and put into shape for action by the two houses. These meetings are held in the morning hours and at night after the session has adjourned for the day.

Mr. Looney says that with the state tax fixed at the maximum of three mills, the total income of the state for the next two years should total $26,000,000. Of this $3,000,000 is represented by the surplus now in the treasury, $10,000,000 from ad valorem taxes, and $13,000,000 from other sources. Although bills carrying nearly twice this amount have been introduced, he is of the opinion that they will be cut to the point where the state will live within its income.

The warehouse bill, carrying an appropriation of $1,250,000 is certain of passage, Mr. Looney says. He explained that the state is not going into the building of warehouses, but will lend this money to farmers cooperative organizations as it now lends schools funds on real estate mortgages. The loans will be secured by mortgages on the property. On local warehouses 50 per cent of the value will be loaned, while on terminal warehouses the limit will be 60 per cent. Thus the interests of the state will be safeguarded. Senator Looney was the chairman of the agricultural sub-committee which worked out the details of this bill.

Free Text Books Certain
Free school text books are a certainty, he says.

The bill granting an emergency appropriation for the relief of the poorer school districts, so that it will not be necessary to cut short their terms, has passed both houses but since the senate and the appropriation from $915,000, as carried by the house bill, to $400,000, it will be necessary for the bill to go to the conference committee for further action. The senate adopted some amendments which will have the effect of making it certain that only the most needy districts will get this relief after they have taxed themselves to the limit and can show that they have not been unduly extravagant with their funds.

He also stated that alike appropriation will be made for the next two years.

Senator Looney is the author of a bill which, if enacted, will greatly change the present system of farm loans by making it equitable for all counties in the state. The aim will be to make loans to actual farmers. The bill divides these into three classes. The first class will be actual farmers living on the farms and owning no more than $5,000 worth of land, the loan not to exceed $2,000. The next class is to consist of actual farmers. The third class consists of other individuals who have resided in the state not less than two years. The money available for loans will be apportioned to the several counties in proportion to the assessed values of their agricultural lands as determined by the state board of equalization from time to time as provided by law.

The need of this last provision is illustrated in the cases of Pontotoc and Seminole counties. In these counties only about $200,000 has been loaned while in Seminole about half this amount has been put out. On the other hand, some counties have received from $600,000 to $1,000,000 of this money.

Highway Law in for Change

He stated that the highway laws are in for a thorough overhauling.

The outstanding features of the bill are a tax of one cent on gasoline which will be applied on the roads; auto license taxes will be collected by the various counties instead of by the state; taxes on the higher priced cars will be raised; the size of trucks operating on the highways to be regulated; glaring headlight and speed on highways to be regulated; more money made available for roads in the county other than designated state roads.

He says there is no chance for the bill establishing a state owned cement plant to pass, although it is an administration measure.

Such an undertaking would mean an outlay of not less than $3,000,000 and it is realized that to require the state, counties and municipalities to use its product exclusively would destroy the incentive for efficiency.

Besides this political consideration often determine the location of state industries and if located unfavorably the plant might not be able to compete successfully with private plants.

Then if it could not supply the product as cheaply as private firms there would be a demand for the repeal of the state monopoly and this would mean that the plant might become a dead loss.

Senator Looney is of the opinion that the legislature will not likely finish its business before April 1.

Interest Increases in Annual Basketball Tournament

OKEMAH TEAM IN MOOD FOR FIGHT

Coach Vernon's Team To Be Here Strong In Ada Conference

That the Okemah high school will be an outstanding contender for the district championship in the basketball tournament to be held here March 1, 2 and 3, is the warning given by J. O. Vernon, coach of the Okemah team and formerly of this.

"Okemah boys were nosed out of the district championship by the Ada team in the last moments of the play here last year, but we are coming back with the same team and more determination this time," Coach Vernon declared.

While the Okemah team has been handicapped for games during the season because it had no indoor court to attract opponents, it has made short work of the five games played under schedule during the year. The most notable of the Okemah victories have been over the Henryetta and Wewoka high school teams.

Victory of Henryetta last Wednesday eliminated one of the strongest opponents of the Okemah team. The Henryetta team was beaten by a score of 38 to 21. Wewoka was defeated by the Okemah team Friday by a score of 26 to 15.

The last week victories over Henryetta and Wewoka are indication of possibilities of the Okemah team here during the annual tournament, Vernon said.

The Okemah team is placing much confidence in their stellar forward, Stevens. Stevens has shown up as one of the fastest forwards in this district in the games in which he has participated during the season. Coach Vernon is confident that Stevens will again be placed on the district team. Stevens is playing his last year with the Okemah team.

Coach Vernon is depending on the same team that competed in last year's tournament to bring back the honors this year. Okemah secured two men on the all-district team last year and both men, Stevens and Garrison are on the team again this year. Buck was named as one of the all-district guards at the tournament held at Wewoka.

The line-up for the Okemah team to compete here in the district tournament: Stevens, RF; Garrison, LF; Hixon, C; Buck, RG; MacMahan, LG. Subs, Johnson, Smith, Rogers.

WARMING

Is hereby served

On Messrs. Burleigh Grimes, Dutch Ruether, Leon Cadore and Al Mamanus that they may find one young lad named Leo Dickerman challenging their laurels on the Brooklyn Dodger team the coming season.

Dickerman brings to the big show a good record in the Southern association last season and the word of several scouts that a year's work in the big show will just about make him a star.

Dickerman won twenty games and lost but seven for Memphis last season. He worked 275 innings, a good season's work, and held the opposing batter's to a tiny fraction over two runs a game. He struck out ninety-five men.

Fore!-!-!

Golf is a game which is played in as many lands as there is language which is spoke in English. It has been a long time since the sun ever set with out havin' seen some of the gang in action on some sile or other of old terra cotta, and it is a good bet that the world seen its last golfless day a long time ago.

When it gets too cold in the north to play on the local courses all the members that has a bank account in 5 or 6 figures packs up their clubs and shows the wife a telegram which they wrote themselves about a old college chump who lives in Florida who is in bad health and wants to ast their advice about some matters while they is both livin' in the same world.

That gag will work for a year or two if they is a different friend selected to sign the telegram ever year. In the last few years the mast of the college chumps of all fellers who goes south with the ducks has moved to Cuba or Bermuda on account of the advantages to be bought out side of the land which has been called the great "American Desert" by some joke artist. Of course that was before the organization of the Thirst Quenchers Protective Society and the general distribution of home-brew receipts.

But notwithstanding the fact that the 10th and 19th holes has been held illegal the old game is growin' ever day in ever way and there is more people bein' stung by the bug with fatal results than ever before. In fact, even class which has a vote is interested in the game in some way. They is a lot of folks that got to kickin' the game when they was caddies. They is the ones that gets to be the open and closed champions, whatever they is, and writes articles in the magazines on how they done the Valley View course in a rain storm in 2 under par with only a putter.

Then there is a nother class of players that upholds the social end of the game. About the only time they ever gets out on the course is when they walks around with the gallery when they is a open champion doin' a exhibition or a senator playin'. There is many a name that is wrote on the regular Friday night dance program at the clubhouse that is never wrote on a score card and vice versa.

But they is a nother class of guys that has made the game famous and has made possible the annual dividends of the ball manufacturers. They comes out to the course ever day about 4:30 p.m. in the afternoon with a old bag of clubs that looks like they has been lost, but they aint, and they gets out of the car a rollin' up their sleeves and feeling the direction of the wind and lookin' at the first tee to see if the guy who is teachin' his wife to play is out of range so as they can go a head and drive and not be impolite, golfin' speakin'.

They get laughed at by some of the guys who sets in the bridge sames at the clubhouse but they all knows how to take a kickin' and still grin, and they aint many of 'em that has a grouch a year after they start playin'. It is the opinin' of the typer of these lines that they aint nothin' makin' human bein's out of some folks faster than the game of golf is.

Last year was Dickerman's second year in professional ball. He had played semi-pro ball with a Jackson, Mich., team in 1920 and the next season joined Little Rock in the Southern league.

He lives in Atkins, Ark., but was born in De Soto, Mo., October 31, 1897.

The second half found the Tigers fighting in true form and in a burst of speed, Miller obtained the heavy end of the scoring machine and Ada overcome the lead of the Baptists at the end of the first half.

The Baptists recently pulled a surprise victory over Phillips University, who defeated the Ada College here in two straight games.

Texas-Oklahoma College Conference Possible now, East Central Coach Says

The formation of the new conference of Oklahoma and Texas inter-collegiate teams need not interfere with the present affiliation of colleges now in the Oklahoma Collegiate conference, according to M. Z. Thompson, head of the athletics at the East Central College.

Letters from Texas and Oklahoma schools mentioned the possibilities of games in all sports during the coming season, and several are favoring the new conference as a medium for a better series schedule and more recognition of conference merit.

Thompson recently received communication from the East Central Normal College of Texas, situated at Commerce, Texas, Austin College at Sherman and Dallas university asking for games during the coming season. Thompson maintains that these teams will be favorably inclined to any proposition for the formation of a conference that will assure them of a season schedule.

In a recent letter from R. W. Bell, head of athletics at the Southeastern State Teachers college at Duran, suggesting the formation of the new conference he pointed out the favorable location of teams represented in north Texas and southern Oklahoma. Bell points out the central location of the Texas and of the new conference showing that the extreme points for the proposed conference would be less than 250 miles while the extreme points in the Oklahoma Collegiate conference is more than 500.

Charges Conference Discrimination

Thompson remained adamant on his charges of discrimination by conference officials in favoring certain colleges of the Oklahoma collegiate conference in the holding of conference meets.

Thompson maintained that an undiscernible had prevailed in the past in the awarding of the conference meets. Thompson declares that if teams represented on conference meets are required to raise their fee in order to pay for the expenses of the meet, as was the instance of holding the conference at Oklahoma City last year, some action should be taken to keep down the expenses of the conference and the teams represented.

The East Central mentor further asserted that only $7.50 was taken in at the last meet held in Oklahoma City and that teams represented, besides paying their own expenses to the conference, paid an additional fee in order to help pay the expenses of the conference association.

Thompson suggests that if Oklahoma City has been decided on as the permanent battlegrounds of the Oklahoma Collegiate conference, some steps should be taken along the line of economy and insure the teams of the conference that they will not be required to pay for the deficit in the expenses.

The entrance of 60 teams on the courts of Ada for district basketball honors will bring over 500 visitors here during the tournament, which lasts through Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the coming week.

Thursday morning will find the entries divided into preliminary matches, which will occupy the entire day. The following day will also be devoted in weeding out winners in the preliminaries and the final day of the tournament, Saturday will be devoted to the playing off of the semi-finals and finals.

Coach Thompson stated Saturday that he believed the entire three days would be required in playing off the matches for the winners in the district tournament.

Most schools of the district are represented by both boys and girls teams, which will add to the hard-fought battles for representation in the final matches.

Officials at the tournament have not yet been named but this matter will be attended to early in the week.

Silver loving cups have been offered to winners in both boys and girls matches. The Ada Evening News has offered a silver loving cup for the winner in the boys tournament. The cup has been won in turn by Wewoka, Francis two times and Ada. A cup in the girls tournament was offered by Coffman, Bobbitt and Sparks. The cup was made the permanent possession of Wewoka girls after they had carried off the honors for three consecutive years. Coffman, Bobbitt and Sparks are offering a second cup under the same stipulation.

Tickets for the tournament will be placed on sale Monday and will carry a cash value of 50 cents, 25 cents reduction made on student tickets. The proceeds of the ticket sales will go toward the financing of the meet.

Committees will be sent out to college in interest of entertainment of the visitors while here.

Committees will also be named for the housing of visitors for the tournament during their three-day visit.

Father and Scout banquet. Loran Stafford is one and William Roach and Ralph are the others.

In order that Ada and Pontotoc county people may know just how scouting in this county compares with that in the other places in the state we wish to print the following items sent out by the New York office which of course is official.

January 1, 1922, Pontotoc county had 407 scouts registered. Okmulgee had 225. Muskogee 331. Hobart 89. Stephens County 82. Comanche 120. Stephens County 82. Oklahoma City 601.

The radio concert given by Carl Spangler and Vernon Rollow was very well attended. The Willard school troop wishes to thank Mr. Bolton and Mr. Jones for their courtesies to us. Linn Cales and Fred Abney did a great deal of work in putting up the aerial.

It was a fine sight to see all those DeMolay boys in parade here Thursday. We are strong for the DeMolays for there are many scouts among them. We are also strong for them because they will furnish some fine leaders for our scout troops.

Troop 3 under Mr. Erving Bonner had a fine meeting last Tuesday night. Eighteen boys were out. This troop is very active now and we are expecting 32 boys in the troop in a short time.

Troop 1 will start out again with the same fine scoutmaster Mr. D. T. Bradshaw conducting it but with an entirely new group of boys. This will be a troop of scouts of Washington school. Old troop 1 will be mustered out at the Father and Scout banquet and the new troop will be inducted into the organization.

Troop 7 held a fine meeting Monday night with Mr. Ralph Waner. Mr. Waner is giving these boys much of his time and the boys are responding to it.

The Masons of Vanoss were the hosts to the Boy Scouts of that place Tuesday night. Many of the boys and their parents were out. Plenty of good eats were served. Mr. Bailey Bobbitt, Prof. Oscar Kimbrough, and the scout executive were over and each made short speeches. Rev. Thomas Coffey and Mr. W. T. Buck deserve much credit for their fine work over there.

The annual Father and Scout banquet at Allen was held there last Thursday night on Washington's birthday. Mr. Ralph Waner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, went over and made the scouts and their fathers a very fine talk. A very impressive initiation service was put on as a part of the program and Mr. Jesse Snipes the scout master and the Allen scouts certainly have a very fine service of initiation for their tenderfoot scouts. About 70 merit badges were awarded, besides quite a number of tenderfoot and second and first class badges. Austin Kidwell was awarded an Eagle scout badge and Forney Hutchinson was awarded a star scout badge. Allen now has 49 scouts. Scouting at Roff and Fitzhugh is getting along real well and the scoutmasters at each of these places are doing fine work. The scout executive was over there this week.

Troop 3, Irving School, of which Mr. Erving Bonner is scoutmaster, had Mr. W. A. Newton Jr. to talk to them on Wild animals last Thursday night. All enjoyed him very much and the scouts took in a little money.

Troop 2 had a fine meeting Friday night. Mr. U. C. Dixon was present and made the scouts a fine instructive talk on signalling. Scoutmaster Tom Fullerton has a fine group of boys who are much interested in scouting. Carl Brown and Hubert Laird of this troop are working hard to become Eagle Scouts in time to receive their badges at the Father and Scout banquet.

We hope that Clinton Van Curen will do the same for he only lacks one thing.

Troop 9 has 9 new members and Mr. D. T. Bradshaw will have charge of this troop as he had in the past. This troop met Friday evening at Mr. Bradshaw's house and are working hard for new members.

There are a few scouts in Ada who lack so little of being Eagle scouts that we wish that they would work hard at it and get their badges by the time of the

(Spring Number)

Bearing in mind the petite chapeaux in up-town windows and wife's turn hints at their beauty, men turn their thoughts frantically to the coming of spring.

Poofish men can see no reason for wifey trying to outshine the dismal, rainy days of March with a brand new bonnet and the rest to match.

While women are thinking of the change of season and the accompanying rejuvenation of style, men are pondering over the problems of using bon ami on the old straw lid.

***

The infallable sign of spring is the upturned soil in Mr. Business Man's back yard.

For the hand "that fitteth the spade," there is much labor after 6 o'clock.

And the planting of the Spring garden will cause another hardship—chickens must stay home at nights. The mayor has decreed in municipal wrath that chickens must not roost from the beaten path.

***

Another sign of Spring is the annual cleaning of the rod and tackle. When man escapes all other symptoms of the passing of the winter months, this remains.

***

Many an indolent husband will attract the admiration of his friends by spading his front yard when his wife is the power behind the spade.

***

Wherever ye hoe, there shall ye reap.

***

Ye plodder remember the kettle. Though its neck is in hot water, it continues to sing.

***

Remember the Volstead ruling and keep above suspicion by not planting your garden in corn.

In silence my key unlocks the door,

She sleeps.

In stocking feet I tread the hall,

She sleeps.

With noiseless steps I cross the hall

The morning was bright, still, and clear as crystal. The heat waves had not yet begun to rise from the desert.

Nell sat perched high upon the topmost bar of the corral gate. Dick leaned beside her, now with his eyes on her face, now gazing out into the alfalfa field where Belding's thoroughbreds grazed and pranced and whistled. Nell watched the horses. She loved them, never tired of watching them. But her gaze was too consciously averted from the yearning eyes that tried to meet hers to be altogether natural.

A great fenced field of velvety green alfalfa furnished a rich background for the drove of about twenty white horses. Blanco Diablo was the only one in the field that was not free to roam and graze where he listed. A stake and a halter held him to one corner, where he was severely let alone by the other horses. He did not like this isolation. Blanco Diablo was not happy unless he was running, or fighting a rival. Of the two he would rather fight. If anything white could resemble a devil, this horse surely did. He had nothing beautiful about him, yet he drew the gaze and held it. The look of him suggested discontent, anger, revolt, viciousness. When he was not grazing or prancing, he held his long, lean head level, pointing his nose and showing his teeth. Belding's favorite was almost the only horse to him, and he swore Diablo could stand more heat and thirst and cactus than any other horse he owned, and could run down and kill any horse in the Southwest.

The cowboys admitted some of Belding's claims for Diablo, but they gave loyal and unshakable allegiance to Blanco Sol. As for Dick, he had to fight himself to keep out of arguments, for he sometimes imagined he was unreasonable about the horse. Though he could not understand himself, he knew he loved Sol as a man loved a friend, a brother. Free of heavy saddle and the clumsy leg shields, Blanco Sol was somehow all-satisfying to the eyes of the rangers. The dazzling whiteness of the desert sun shone from his coat; he had the fire and spirit of the desert in his noble head, its strength and power in his gigantic frame.

"Belding swears Sol never beat Diablo," Dick was saying.

"He believes it," replied Nell. "Dick is queer about that horse."

"I've often wondered how Belding ever came to give Blanco Sol to me," said Dick.

"I think he wanted to get rid of Sol."

"Maybe. He surely has strange passion for horses. I think I understand better than I used to. I owned a couple of racers once. They were just animals to me, I guess. But Blanco Sol!"

"Do you love him?" asked Nell; and now a warm, blue flush of eyes swept his face.

"Do I? Well, rather."

"I'm glad. Sol has been finer, a better horse since you owned him. He loves you, Dick. Sol always hated Diablo, and never had much use for him."

Dick looked up at her.

"It'll be pretty hard to leave Sol when I go away."

Nell sat perfectly still.

"Go away?" she asked, presently, with just the faintest tremor in her voice.

"Yes. Sometimes when I get blue—as I am today—I think I'll go. But in sober truth, Nell, it's not like you that I'll spend all my life here."

There was no answer to this. Dick put his hand softly over hers; and, despite her half-hearted struggle to free it, he held on.

"Nell!"

Her color fled. He saw her lips part. Then a heavy step on the gravel, a cheerful, complaining voice interrupted him, and made him release Nell and draw back. Belding strode into view round the adobe shed.

"Hey, Dick, that darned Yaqui Indian can't be driven or hired or coaxed to leave Forlorn River. He's well enough to travel. I offered him horse, gun, blanket, grub. But no go."

"That's funny," replied Gale, with

OBITUARY

Mrs. Sallie Ledford, wife of W. M. Ledford, living six miles from Ada, died Saturday at 3:30 a. m. at the home of her son, W. P. Ledford, 503 East 13th street. Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the above home, Rev. J. H. Ball officiating. Interment at Rosedale cemetery.

Decedased was 64 years of age, and was a member of the Methodist church. She is survived by her husband and two sons, John and W. P. Ledford.

The family has resided in and near Ada for many years.

A week ago Mrs. Ledford was brought in for medical attention but all efforts to prolong her life were unavailing.

a smile. "Let him stay—put him to work."

"It doesn't strike me funny. But I'll tell you what I think. That poor, homeless, heartbroken Indian has taken a liking to you, Dick. You saved his life. That sort of thing counts big with any Indian, even with an Apache. With a Yaqui maybe it's of deep significance. I've heard a Yaqui say that with his tribe no debt to friend or foe ever went unpaid. Perhaps that's what all this fellow."

"Dick, don't laugh," said Nell. "I've noticed the Yaqui. It's pathetic the way his great gloomy eyes follow you."

"You've made a friend," continued Belding. "A Yaqui could be a real friend on this desert. If he gets his strength back he'll be of service to you, don't mistake me. He's welcome here. But you're responsible for him, and you'll have trouble keeping him from mauling all the Greasers in Forlorn River."

The probability of a visit from the raiders, and a dash-holder than usual on the outskirts of a ranch, led Belding to build a new corral. It was not sightly to the eye, but it was high and exceedingly strong. The gate was a massive affair, swinging on huge hinges and fastening with heavy chains and padlocks.

At night Belding locked his white horses in this corral. The Papago herdsmen slept in the adobe shed adjoining. Belding did not imagine that any wooden fence, however substantially built, could keep determined raiders from breaking it down. They would have to take time, however, and make considerable noise, and Belding relied on these facts. Belding did not believe a band of night raiders would hold out against a hot rifle fire. Taught did not share Belding's sanguine hopes.

One January morning Dick Gale was awakened by a shrill, mounting cry. He leaped up bewildered and frightened. He heard Belding's barking voice answering shouts and rapid steps on the stones. But these had not awoken him. Heavy breaths, almost sobs, seemed at his very door. In the cold and gray dawn Dick saw something white. Can it be him, he bounded across the room, just outside his door stood Blanco Sol.

It was not unusual for Sol to come poking his head in at Dick's door during daylight. But now in the early dawn, when he had been locked in the corral, it meant raiders—no less. Dick called softly to the snorting horse; and, hurriedly getting into clothes and boots, he went out with a gun in each hand. Sol was quivering in every muscle. Like a dog he followed Dick around the house. Hearing shouts in the direction of the corrals, Gale bent swift steps that way.

He caught up with Jim Lash, who was also leading a white horse.

They reached the corral to find Belding shaking, roaring like a madman. The gate was open, the corral was empty. "Tom, where's the Papa go?" said Ladd.

"He's gone, Laddie—gone!"

"Double-crossed us, eh? I see here's a crowbar lyin' by the gatepost. That Indian fetched it from the forge. It was used to pry out the bolts an' steeple. Tom, I reckon there wasn't much time lost forchin' that gate."

Daylight made clear some details of the raid. The cowboys found tracks of eight raiders coming up from the river bed where their horses had been left. Evidently the Papago had been false to his trust. His few personal belongings were gone. More horses were found loose in the fields. The men soon rounded up eleven of the whites, all more or less frightened.

Belding was inconsolable. He cursed and railed, and finally declared he was going to trail the raiders.

"Tom, you just ain't agoin' to do nothin' of the kind," said Ladd, coolly.

Belding groaned and bowed his head. "Laddie, you're right," he replied, presently. "I've got to stand it. I can't leave the women and my property. But it's sure tough. I'm sore way down deep, and nothin' but blood would ever satisfy me."

"Leave that to me an' Jim," said Ladd.

"What do you mean to do?" demanded Belding, starting up. "Shore I don't know yet. Give me a light for my pipe. An' Dick, go fetch out your Yaqui."

"Leave that to me an' Jim," said Ladd.

NEW ATHLETIC CONFERENCE

Coach M. Z. Thompson of the East Central State Teachers College, together with the coaches of several other colleges in southern Oklahoma and northern Texas, is planning the organization of a new college athletic conference. In this endeavor Mr. Thompson has matched a fight with some of the athletic directors who are trying to center everything around Oklahoma City.

That a new conference is needed is apparent to any one who has kept up with the Oklahoma conference.

In the first place the Oklahoma conference has amounted to little. For several years the Oklahoma University and the Agricultural and Mechanical College were the outstanding schools in the organization, and the others afforded mere practice games for these two big state institutions. When the university withdrew from the conference and entered the Missouri Valley conference, and at the same time the other schools of the state began to take high rank, efforts were made, and are still being made, to make this conference an Oklahoma City affair.

In a recent article in the Daily Oklahoma, Charles Brill, sporting editor, points out why the track meet should be held in Oklahoma City each year. The two main points he makes are that Oklahoma City is centrally located and is large enough to afford many spectators.

In answer to his argument, it might be pointed out that Durant is nearer Dallas than Oklahoma City. Then, we are informed the receipts at Oklahoma City at the track meet a year ago were between $7 and $8 and about the same two years ago. This fact should eliminate Oklahoma City as a place for holding the meet, for there is not a city in the state containing an institution which would afford such insignificant gate receipts.

A conference with the two schools at Shawnee, the teachers colleges at Ada, Durant, Denton and Commerce, the universities at Tulsa, Dallas, and colleges at Sherman and possible two or three other schools, would make a conference that would have ideal railroad connections and a community of interest not present in the Oklahoma Conference.

We are informed that it cost the Southeastern Teachers College $800 to carry their track team to Oklahoma City last spring. Naturally they do not feel like paying this amount again and probably will have no representation this spring. In fact, it was the Southeastern officials who first mentioned the Red River conference. Letters to Thompson from other schools approve the new conference.

There is need for such a new conference, and we hope that Mr. Thompson and others will be able to perfect the organization. A Red River conference would have all the advantages of railroad connection, local interest and a fighting spirit of rivalry that are needed to make any conference successful.

Go to it, Mr. Thompson. The people of Ada are behind you in this meritorious endeavor.

CONGRATULATIONS

The News desires to extend congratulations to the Presbyterians on this the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of the new church building. However, without disparaging the efforts and accomplishments of any member of the church, we feel justified in saying that a large part of the credit for the progress of the enterprise is due to Dr. E. O. Whitwell, the pastor. He is not only a man of broad vision, but is a practical man capable of putting his visions into concrete form. He led the way and has had the hearty co-operation of his flock. Dr. Whitwell's idea of building a church was just to go ahead and build and that is what is being done. Moreover, he thinks it better to govern the progress of building operation by the amount paid in even though it requires more time, rather than put his people under a heavy financial strain at one time. This very practical way of doing things is getting results. Besides that he has labored with his own hands and carefully supervised every detail of the work. With the continued support of his congregation and other friends, he will have the roof over the building before another year rolls around. In giving credit to those whom credit is due the men who have donated work should also be remembered. This has been no small item and these workers have aided in no small degree in making it possible to push the work it its present state.

It is not too late yet to put out a few more trees. The shade trees of Ada have worked a wonderful change in the appearance of the town during the past decade and with such a good example before them the rest of the population should follow suit. Plenty of shade and fruit trees about the premises and a liberal application of the paint brush to the buildings go a long way toward proclaiming the prosperity of a town and of telling the world that the people are full of pep.

If a man could see his own path of duty as well as he sees that which his neighbor ought to tread, he would get up and go some. Paths of duty never intersect at grade crossing but many a fellow who was out of his path has been pretty badly bunged up by getting on others fellow's right-of-way.

The Forum of the Press

Changes in Main Street (Birmingham Age Herald)

Twenty years ago "Main Street" in the average small town of America was a dreary thoroughfare, humble and unpretentious. The stores were for the most part small affairs. Little attention was paid to their appearance, and an attractive shop window was a rarity. The drug stores were ever a center for community gossip but they were plain and unpretentious. In fact, the only bright spots along Main Street were the saloons, some of the proprietors striving for ornamental effects in lights and pictures and soap designs on the bar mirror. There might even be a wheezy musical instrument of some sort that could be played by putting a coin in a slot. At night, "Main Street" was dark, forbidden and deserted. A remarkable transformation has taken place. The principal street in the average small town is now well paved. The stores have a city appearance. Motor cars have supplanted wagons and buggies. The saloons are gone, but they would appear tawdry indeed compared to the mighty palaces and the drug emporium in marble tile, where a little of everything is sold in addition to pills and potions. At night "Main Street" is brilliantly lighted. Motion picture shows, with an occasional attraction at the "opera house," draw out the citizens, who are more prosperous, more up-to-date and more alert than they used to be. They have adopted city ways on a limited scale and flatter themselves that after all the chief difference between their small little town and the nearest metropolis is in the matter of size. They ride in the same kind of motor cars, see the same photoplays and enjoy most of the conveniences city people do. "Main Street" symbolizes America and its new splendor is proof of the advancement made by the American people.

Dollars and Diplomacy (Los Angeles Times)

The house has passed the administration's diplomatic bill, which tends to further dignify and improve our foreign service. Consular and diplomatic fields are now careers, instead of mere political spoil. This is more in accord with the English system, which has given the empire the finest diplomatic representation any government ever had. No matter in what corner of the earth he may be, the British consul is a personality who commands confidence and respect.

Uncle Sam's representatives are now largely under civil service and are transferred or assigned to stations in which their qualities may may best shine. Appointments are no longer made on purely political account and the American consul of today is usually found to be actually and frequently specially qualified for the station he is filling.

Under the new bill, which now goes to the senate, the civil service idea is further extended and there is also provision for ambassadorial allowances and the maintenance of embassies.

As it is today, an ambassador must have a large private fortune if he is to live on a par with the representatives of other first-class powers. The United States is the richest country in the world, but has always been niggardly in sustaining its ministers and ambassadors.

It is highly important that our diplomatic and consular service should be maintained from the cream of our citizenship. Our ambassadors ought not to be appointed because of their campaign contributions or the magnitude of their private fortunes. Efficiency and capacity should have first call in the nation's diplomatic service.

Forum Spotlights

Beware ye' boll weevil and go easy "Mr. Pessimist." There can be no rest for these prosperity grifters since Hardy Dial and H. B. Roach have declared war against the boll weevils and some of our optimistic, public spirited boosters have almost perfected a machine that will completely exterminate pessimists. My won't this be a wonderful country to live in by next year.

Now comes more trouble. We have the promise of a creamery and now we find that the pipe line to Byrd's Mill is not large enough to supply the demand for water. Wonder how the milk peddlers will be able to stay in business if we don't furnish plenty of water or let them raise the price.

Some few people have gotten a habit of saying Ada is dead but one of our distinguished members says it is only some of the citizens that are dead. Time to get busy Mr. Undertaker, but for goodness sake don't preserve 'em.

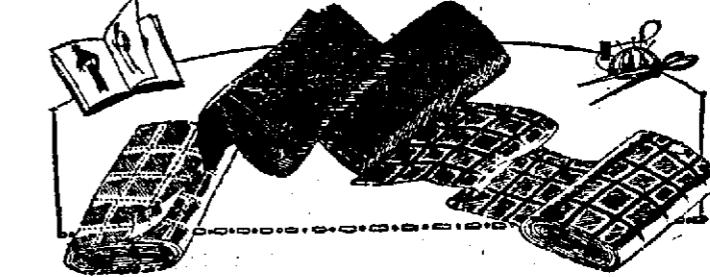

One of the members that attended the Forum Meeting Tuesday night has asked the Secretary to make a contract with the Ada Pickle Plant to serve pickles at every meeting hereafter. This would be fine if we had room to accommodate the crowd. Judging from the way the men went after those pickles Tuesday night, their wives have evidently been feeding them taffy.

DEMAND FOR FORDS NOW ON GRADUAL INCREASE

According to W. E. Harvey, local Ford agent, the demand for the products of the Ford Motor Co. is greater than ever before in the history of the organization. For the past six months, sales have grown by leaps and bounds and every factory and assembly plant is turning out a maximum of production. Each succeeding month has seen a new sales record established.

The guests included Misses Geraldine Lee, Marjorie Jackson, Muriel Harvey, Mozzelle Hunter, Ethel James Byrd, Mary Frances Duncan and Miss Payne, the honoree.

RESUME OF IBSEN TAKEN UP BY FORTNIGHTLY CLUB

The Fortnightly Study Club met with Mrs. A. Linscheid, 250 South Francis, Thursday. The officers, dressed in Colonial costume, received the members at the door. Suggestions of George Washington's birthday featured the decorations. The entertainment of the social hour. After a serving of stimulating hot punch and wafers the club proceeded with their lesson which was ably led by Mrs. S. Jackson. Messages from the Master Builder were read and discussed. A summing up of Ibsen, the dramatist, the humorist, the psychologist, the teacher, the man, followed. The next meeting will be with Mrs. German, 211 East Seventeenth.

Lessons from the "Master Builders".

"The wrecking of another's health and happiness can only bring misery to the perpetrator."

"When life has no purpose the man is dead spiritually."

"To will is success in life; to lead a passive existence is failure."

"One's ideals must ever be beyond actual reach—the glory lies in striving toward them."

"A great man's powers do not decline with age. The master-builder was not old from the literal standpoint, but age came upon him because his usefulness had departed from him."

"If our mission in this life is to make this a better and more beautiful world for posterity we will never fear or resent the oncoming generation but will welcome the fact that they must attain heights that we have not reached else our lives have been in vain."

"That he, who reaches what he considers the top of the ladder, sits down to enjoy his success, will never go any higher and will not be able to even sit there very long but will soon fall. If not all in a heap, as did Master Builder, in at least gradually but surely."

"That selfishness will be re- venged in the character of the person selfish. That the old generation should not stand in the way of the new."

"The greatest lesson seems to be that there should be God-reh- bance and not self-reliance alone."

"Man's primary mission on earth is service—the service of God and mankind. The man who forgets God and uses the emotions, aspirations, and hopes of his fellow man to attain his heart's desire, never reaches the pinnacle of his ambition. Such a man was Solness. Con- sumed by a greed for fame, as a builder he crushed the individualities of his friends and loved ones, forcing them to serve as stepping

High School Library Grows

The library has kept pace with the improvement so noticeable in all the other departments of the institution. Since the school term opened in September the Ada Board of Education has purchased many needed books and magazines for this part of the school. Among the latter are, The Literary Digest, Current Opinion, The American Magazine, the Scientific American, The Saturday Evening Post, and The Dearborn Independent.

A highly prized book on forestry containing valuable material for special theme work has been presented by Superintendent Hickman.

The library is also indebted to Judge and Mrs. C. A. Galbraith for a generous gift of forty-two very useful volumes, ten of which deal with history ten are reference books, fifteen on "Modern Eloquence," and six on miscellaneous subjects, and a "Cyclopedia of Practical Information."

The above donations are highly appreciated by all who are connected with the school.

Ada Girl Honored At Style Pageant At Oklahoma City

Further proof that Ada is represented in other than legislative channels at the capital city is verified in a recent article in the Oklahoman which carried with it the picture of Miss Gladys Rawls, formerly of this city, as one of the models in Oklahoma City's style show on February 28.

Miss Rawls, the daughter of John Rawls of this city, was selected with seven others out of a battery of beauties to participate in the style pageant.

Miss Rawls will be one of the principals in "A Modern Cinderella" a style pageant at Oklahoma City. Miss Rawls received her educational training in the Ada high school and at the East Central College.

Several times I have talked shop in this column by telling of the advantages of the News as an advertising medium. Not long ago we placed a two line reader in the daily, costing 20 cents per day, offering frying chickens for sale. So far we have sold around $20 worth as the customers keep coming back for more it will be seen that the ad has not yet quit working. Last week we put an ad in the want columns of the daily and weekly offering setting eggs for sale. Saturday a man living eleven miles from Ada came in and wanted 200 eggs. How is that for results?

OKMULGEE OIL MEN PUT STAMP ON LEGISLATIVE BILL

(By the Associated Press)
OKMULGEE, Feb. 24.—Okmulgee district oil and gas association today went on record opposing house bill 434, now pending before the legislature, which would create a petroleum and gas commission and take the oil and gas powers from the corporation commission. The oil men point out that passage of the measure will not in any way benefit the oil men of the state but instead will entail an additional and unnecessary burden to the taxpayers of the state.

Heavy Decline in Shipbuilding Now Shown Over World

LONDON.—Accounting to Lloyd's Annual Summary of Merchantile Shipbuilding, 562 vessels of 2,467,084 tons were built during 1922 in the shipbuilding yards of the world, which compares with 1,377 of 4,341,679 tons in 1921 and 2,483 of 7,144,549 tons in 1919.

The output credited to the United States for 1922 is 119,138 tons of 887,275 tons less than during 1921, and nearly four millions tons less than the record year of 1919. British yards built 1,031,081 tons in 1922 as compared with 1,538,052 tons in 1921; Germany's output in 1922 was 575,264 tons against 509,064 in the previous year. Other notable declines in 1922 as compared with 1921 are: Japan, 144,066 tons; Holland, 69,270; Italy, 63,571; Denmark, 36,222 and France, 26,754 tons.

The number of steam and motor tankers launched in the world's yards during 1922 and 61 of 355,854 tons, and of these Great Britain is credited with 42 of 262,826 tons, and the United States two of 14,440.

Laying Out a City Garden

PLANTING PLAN FOR A VEGETABLE GARDEN 10X20 FEET

A surprising amount and variety of vegetables can be grown in a 10x20 city garden provided it be well planned. The plan illustrated for a space of 10x20 feet is just a suggestion, to be built upon in making your own layout, if this is the space you have. If more space is available a much greater variety can be grown. Let us consider the possibilities of a space 30 by 50 feet quite a common size.

For instance, planted the 50-foot way of the garden, put in the first row to early peas. A pine will plant the 50-foot row in a double row six inches apart, or, as some deem a better system, the peas spaced two or three inches apart in a wide row six inches across the bottom. The second row, two feet from the first, could be put in to second early peas, and a third row, two feet farther on, into a third pea planting. One pint for each row is sufficient. For this third row it might be well to allow two and a half or three feet of space and plant some of the finer quality, heavier-vining peas.

The fourth row might be devoted to three plantings of radishes from a week to ten days apart, a third to each planting, the spaces to be filled in with a dozen peppers, six eggplants and say, half a dozen late cabbage plants, after the radishes have been used. The fifth row, three feet from the pepper-egg plant row, would accommodate 30 tomato plants. Before the tomatoes are put in it could be planted to the earliest crop of spinach.

The next two rows, two feet apart, could be planted one row to string beans and the other to bush lima beans. The next row would accommodate 25 cabbage plants, or half cabbage and half cauliflower, of the early types. Then allowing two and a half feet between the rows, a later broad-casting of spinach would be available, to be followed with later tomatoes or string beans. Two feet farther along a row of onions from seed, for 25 feet, half the length of the garden, would go in. An ounce of seed would be necessary. The same extent of carrots and beets could be placed in the next two rows, one foot apart, with a row of onion sets. For the outside beds, two to accommodate a first and second planting of lettuce, each 8 feet by 3 1/2 feet, and a bed of equal size for parsley, would be available.

The arrangement leaves a rectangle of about 25 by 9, which may be divided in three beds, the first for early sweet corn, accommodating nine hills 2 1/2 feet each way, a second to eight poles of Kentucky

Wonder beans in a space 6 by 9, and the final corner, 10 by 9, for nine poles of lima beans.

Illustrated in the cases of Pontotoc and Seminole counties. In these counties only about $200,000 has been loaned while in Seminole about half this amount has been put out. On the other hand, some counties have received from $600,000 to $1,000,000 of this money.

Highway Law in for Change

He stated that the highway laws are in for a thorough overhauling. The outstanding features of the bill are a tax of one cent on gasoline which will be applied on the roads; auto license taxes will be collected by the various counties instead of by the state; taxes on the higher priced cars will be raised; the size of trucks operating on the highways to be regulated; glaring headlight and speed on highways to be regulated; more money made available for roads in the county other than designated state roads.

He says there is no chance for the bill establishing a state owned cement plant to pass, although it is an administration measure. Such an undertaking would mean an outlay of not less than $3,000,000 and it is realized that to require the state, counties and municipalities to use its product exclusively would destroy the incentive for efficiency. Besides this political consideration often determine the location of state industries and if located unfavorably the plant might not be able to compete successfully with private plants. Then if it could not supply the product as cheaply as private firms there would be a demand for the repeal of the state monopoly and this would mean that the plant might become a dead loss.

CUBS TO HAVE BIG PLAYHOUSE

New Chicago Park Slated to be Largest Single-Deck Park in Country.

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. — Chicago will have the largest single deck baseball stand in the country when the new Cub's park is completed for the opening of the 1923 season. The work is rapidly nearing completion at a cost of nearly $400,000.

When finished the park will have a seating capacity of approximately 31,000 compared with a previous capacity of 17,500. There will be 9,277 box seats, 16,572 grand stand seats and about 5,000 bleacher seats.

The old steel and concrete stand, which was erected in 1914 by the Chicago Federal League club and taken over by the Cubs with the absorption of the Federals in 1916, was cut in three parts. The side sections were moved back while the central section was left in its original position and the open space between the stands was filled in with new sections.

The new grounds and stand will occupy one square block. There will be twenty entrances, and thirty ticket windows. Heretofore, the park had only one set of bleacher seats, but under the reconstruction, there will be bleacher seats in both right and left fields.

With the enlargement of the stand, also came enlargement of the playing field. The diamond was moved back sixty-eight feet, and then turned more to the northwest. The distance from the home plate to the center field is 440 feet. The depth of the playing field at the foul lines will be about 245 feet.

The cost of the stand at the time of its erection was approximately $350,000. The plant exclusive of the franchise, will now be worth approximately $750,000.

A six room bungalow will be built in the northwest corner of the site to be used by the ground superintendent as a home and office.

ANNUAL FIELD MEET TO BE HELD HERE MARCH 13

The tenth annual Pontotoc county track and field meet is scheduled to be held at Ada, April 13 and 14. The rules and regulations have already been sent to the various schools of the county and it is expected that practically all will be represented in at least one event.

Besides the many athletic events, literary and musical contests are scheduled, thus affording an opportunity for all classes of students to participate in some event where he can make the best showing.

Suitable medals, loving cups and other trophies will be awarded to the winning individuals and teams.

Sept. Floyd states that last year practically all the schools were represented and that he expects as good or better attendance this year.

This has come to be quite an event with the public schools of the county. It was a rather slim affair at the beginning, but has grown from year to year until the entire county now takes an interest in it.

OKEMAH TEAM IN MOOD FOR FIGHT

Coach Vernon's Team To Be Here Strong In Ada Conference

That the Okemah high school will be an outstanding contender for the district championship in the basketball tournament to be held here March 1, 2 and 3, is the warning given by J. O. Vernon, coach of the Okemah team and formerly of this city.

"Okemah boys were nosed out of the district championship by the Ada team in the last moments of the play here last year, but we are coming back with the same team and more determination this time," Coach Vernon declared.

While the Okemah team has been handicapped for games during the season because it has no indoor court to attract opponents, it has made short work of the five games played under schedule during the year. The most notable of the Okemah victories have been given to the Henryetta and Wewoka high school teams.

Victory of Henryetta last Wednesday eliminated one of the strongest opponents of the Okemah team. The Henryetta team was beaten by a score of 38 to 21. Wewoka was defeated by the Okemah team Friday by a score of 26 to 15.

The last week's victories over Henryetta and Wewoka are indicators of possibilities of the Okemah team here during the annual tournament, Vernon said.

The Okemah team is placing much confidence in their stellar coach, Stevens. Stevens has shown up as one of the fastish forwards in this district in the games in which he has participated during the season. Coach Vernon is confident that Stevens will again be placed on the district team. Stevens is playing his best year with the Okemah team.

Coach Vernon is depending on the same team that competed in last year's tournament to bring back the honors this year. Okemah scored two men on the all-district team last year and both men, Stevens and Garrison are on the team again this year. Dick was named as one of the all-district guards at the tournament held at Wewoka.

Is hereby served

On Messrs. Burleigh Grimes, Dutch Rutherford, Leon Cadore and Al Mamauka that they may find one young lad named Leo Dickerman challenging their laurels on the Brooklyn Dodger team the coming season.

Dickerman brings to the big show a good record in the Southern Association last season and the word of several grants that a year's work in the big show will just about make him a star.

Dickerman won twenty games and lost but seven for Memphis last season. He worked 275 innings, a good season's work, and held the opposing batter's to a tiny fraction over two runs a game. He struck out ninety-five men.

Fore!-!-!

Golf is a game which is played in as many lands as there is language which is spoken in English. It has been a long time since the sun ever set with out havin' seen some of the gang in action on some sile or other of old terra cotta, and it is a good bet that the world seen its last golfless day a long time ago.

When it gets too cold in the north to play on the local courses all the members that has a bank account in 5 or 6 figures packs up their clubs and shows the wife a telegram which they wrote themselves about a old college chump who lives in Florida who is in bad health and wants to ast their advice about some matters while they is both livin' in the same world.

That gag will work for a year or two if they is a different friend selected to sign the telegram ever year. In the last few years the mast of the college chumps of all fellers who goes south with the ducks has moved to Cuba or Bermuda on account of the advantages to be bought out side of the land which has been called the great "American Desert" by some joke artist. Of course that was before the organization of the Thirst Quenchers Protective Society and the general distribution of home-brew receipts.

But notwithstanding the fact that the 16th and 19th holes has been held illegal the old game is growin' ever day in ever way and there is more people bein' stung by the bug with fatal results than ever before. In fact, ever class with has a vote is interested in the game in some way. They is a lot of folks that got to kickin' the game when they was caddies. They is the ones that gets to be the open and closed champions, whatever they is, and writes articles in the magazines on how they done the Valley View course in a rain storm in 3 under par with only a putter.

Then there is a nother class of players that upholds the social end of the game. About the only time they ever gets out on the course is when they walks around with the gallery when they is a open champion doin' a exhibition or a senator playin'. There is many a name that is wrote on the regular Friday night dance program at the clubhouse that is never wrote on a score card and vice versa.

But they is a nother class of guys that has made the game famous and has made possible the annual dividends of the ball manufacturers. They comes out to the course ever day about 4:30 p. m. in the afternoon with a old bag of clubs that looks like they has been lost, but they aint, and they aint out of the car, a rollin' up their sleeves and feelin' the direction of the wind and lookin' at the first tee to see if the guy who is teachin' his wife to play is out of range so as they can go a head and drive and not be impolite, golly speakin'.

They get laughed at by some of the guys who sits in the bridge games at the clubhouse but they all knows how to take a kickin' all still grin, and they aint many of 'em that has a group a year after they start playin'. It is the lines opine of the typer of these lines that they aint nothin' makin' human bein's out of some folks faster than the game of golf is.

Last year was Dickerman's second year in professional ball. He had played semi-pro ball with a Jackson, Mich., team in 1920 and the next season joined Little Rock in the Southern League.

He lives in Atkins, Ark., but was born in De Soto, Mo., October 31, 1897.

Texas-Oklahoma College Conference Possible now, East Central Coach Says

The formation of the new conference of Oklahoma and Texas inter-collegiate teams need not interfere with the present affiliation of colleges now in the Oklahoma Collegiate conference, according to M. Z. Thompson, head of the athletics at the East Central College.

Letters from Texas and Oklahoma schools mentioned the possibilities of games in all sports during the coming season and several are favoring the new conference as a medium for a better series schedule and more recognition of conference merit.

Thompson recently received communication from the East Central Normal College of Texas, situated at Commerce, Texas. Austin College at Sherman and Dallas university asking for games during the coming season. Thompson maintains that if teams represented on conference meets are required to raise their fee in order to pay for the expenses of the meet, as was the instance of holding the conference at Oklahoma City last year, some action should be taken to keep down the expenses of the conference and the teams represented.

The East Central mentor further asserted that only $7.50 was taken in at the last meet held in Oklahoma City and that teams represented, besides paying their own expenses to the conference, paid an additional fee in order to help pay the expenses of the conference association.

Thompson suggests that if Oklahoma City has been decided on as the permanent battlegrounds of the Oklahoma Collegiate conference, some steps should be taken along the line of economy and insure the teams of the conference that they will not be required to pay for the deficit in the expenses.

ADA PREPARING FOR TOURNAMENT

Sixty Teams To Contest For Basketball Honors In Meet Here

The basketball season will die a noble death here March 3 at the conclusion of the annual district basketball tournament which is called for March 1, 2 and 3. Practically every school in this section of the state will be represented at the meet.

While about 54 teams in this district of the state had sent in entry blanks Saturday, the date of the closing of the entry period, Coach M. Z. Thompson believed that the remaining entries would bring the number well above 60.

The entrance of 60 teams on the courts of Ada for district basketball honors will bring over 500 visitors here during the tournament, which lasts through Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the coming week.

Thursday morning will find the teams divided into preliminary matches, which will occupy the entire day. The following day will also be devoted in wedging out winners in the preliminaries and the final day of the tournament, Saturday will be devoted to the playing off of the semi-finals and finals.

Coach Thompson stated Saturday that he believed the entire three days would be required in playing off the matches for the winners in the district tournament.

Most schools of the district are represented by both boys and girls teams, which will add to the hard-fought battles for representation in the final matches.

Officials at the tournament have not yet been named but this matter will be attended to early in the week.

Silver loving cups have been offered to winners in both boys and girls matches. The Ada Evening News has offered a silver loving cup for the winner in the boys tournament. The cup has been won in turn by Wewoka, Francis two times and Ada. A cup in the girls tournament was offered by Coffman, Bobbitt and Sparks. The cup was made the permanent possession of Wewoka girls after they had carried of the honors for three consecutive years. Coffman, Bobbitt and Sparks are offering a second cup under the same stipulation.

Tickets for the tournament will be placed on sale Monday and will carry a cash value of 50 cents, 25 cents reduction made on student tickets. The proceeds of the ticket sales will go toward the financing of the meet.

Committees will be sent out to college in interest of entertainment of the visitors while here. Committees will also be named for the housing of visitors for the tournament during their three-day visit.

Father and Scout banquet. Loran Stafford is one and William Roach and Ralph are the others.

In order that Ada and Pontotoc county people may know just how scouting in this county compares with that in the other places in the state we wish to print the following items sent out by the New York office which of course is official.

January 1, 1922, Pontotoc county had 407 scouts registered. Okmulgee had 225. Muskogee 331. Hobart 89. Stephens County 82. Comanche 120. Stephens County 82. Oklahoma City 601.

The Okmulgee Executive had only 407 scouts registered. Okmulgee to look after and did no county work. The Muskogee Executive had a car furnished, a stenographer, and worked only Muskogee, Oklahoma City has an executive, field executive, stenographer; if one will look at the report of the Texas towns of this same region he will find that Dallas has only 360 scouts, Austin 263, El Paso a town of 100,000 population has only 497 and the executive there had a stenographer a field executive. Pontotoc county with 407 scouts registered on January 1, 1922 ranks higher than any other Council in the ninth region as reported from the National office. This has been done with a smaller budget than any other council. Your scout executive has had no car, no stenographer, no field executive but he has had the finest group of scoutmasters and councilmen to help that any executive could have and he believes that he has among the finest group of co-workers that any one could have and that he has the splendid cooperation of the schools and the homes and the churches of this whole county. Ada salesmen have kindly done their part in giving him also a number of rides to the different places in town.

The Masons of Vanoss were the hosts to the Boy Scouts of that place Tuesday night. Many of the boys and their parents were out. Plenty of good eats were served. Mr. Bailey Bobbitt, Prof. Oscar Kimbrough, and the scout executive were over and each made short speeches. Rev. Thomas Coffey and Mr. W. T. Buck deserve much credit for their fine work over there.

The annual Father and Scout banquet at Allen was held there last Thursday night on Washington's birthday. Mr. Ralph Waner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, went over and made the scouts and their fathers a very fine talk. A very impressive initiation service was put on as a part of the program and Mr. Jesse Snipes the scout master and the Allen scouts certainly have a very fine service of initiation for their tenderfoot scouts. About 70 merit badges were awarded, besides quite a number of tenderfoot and second and first class badges. Austin Kidwell was awarded an Eagle scout badge and Forney Hutchinson was awarded a star scout badge. Allen now has 49 scouts. Scouting at Roff and Fitzhugh is getting along real well and the scoutmasters at each of these places are doing fine work. The scout executive was over there this week.

Troop 3, Irving School, of which Mr. Erving Bonner is scoutmaster, had Mr. W. A. Newton Jr. to talk to them on Wild animals last Thursday night. All enjoyed him very much and the scouts took in a little money.

Troop 2 had a fine meeting Friday night. Mr. U. C. Dixson was present and made the scouts a fine instructive talk on signalling. Scoutmaster Tom Fullerton has a fine group of boys who are much interested in scouting. Carl Brown and Hubert Laird of this troop are working hard to become Eagle Scouts in time to receive their badges at the Father and Scout banquet.

We hope that Clinton Van Cavan will do the same for he only lacks one thing.

Troop 1 has 9 new members and Mr. D. T. Bradshaw will have charge of this troop as he had in the past. This troop met Friday evening at Mr. Bradshaw's house and are working hard for new members.

There are a few scouts in Ada who lack so little of being Eagle scouts that we wish that they would work hard at it and get their badges by the time of the

(Spring Number)

Bearing in mind the petite chapeaux in up-town windows and wife's timid hints at their beauty, men turn their thoughts frantically to the coming of spring.

Foolish men can see no reason for wifey trying to outshine the dismal, rainy days of March with a brand new bonnet and the rest to match.

While women are thinking of the change of season and the accompanying rejuvenation of style, men are pondering over the problems of using bon ami on the old straw hat.

The infallible sign of spring is the upturned soil in Mr. Business Man's back yard.

For the hard "that fitteth the spade," there is much labor after 6 o'clock.

And the planting of the Spring garden will cause another hardship—chickens must stay home at nights. The mayor has decreed in municipal wrath that chickens must not roam from the beaten path.

Another sign of Spring, is the annual cleaning of the rod and tackle. When man escapes all other symptoms of the passing of the winter months, this remains.

Many an indolent husband will attract the admiration of his friends by spading his front yard when his wife is the power behind the spade.

Wherever ye hoe, there shall ye reap.

Ye plodder remember the kettle. Though its neck is in hot water, it continues to sing.

Remember the Volstead ruling and keep above suspicion by not planting your garden in corn.

Why Tis.
The alarm clock jingles on the seat,
She sleeps.

The phone rings out its wild demands,
She sleeps.

The neighbors dance on the floor above,
She sleeps.

The cats outside shriek their midnight love,
She sleeps.

In silence my key unlocks the door,
She sleeps.

In stocking feet I tread the hall,
She sleeps.

With noiseless steps I cross the hall
And from the bedroom rings the clarion call

"John! ! ! march right in here and explain why you're coming home at this hour of the morning.
